SBS TO LAUNCH LOCALLY MADE MANDARIN NEWS

Australia's first locally produced and free to air Mandarin news service, with English subtitles, will begin on SBS Two at 5.30pm on Wednesday 24 November.

The weekly program will be repeated on SBS One on Sundays at 6.35am and will include:

a brief wrap of national and international news; major local Chinese arts; cultural, community and sport events; profile pieces on successful Chinese Australian business people, identities and inspiring locals; major stories from China; and stories on visiting Chinese dignitaries and artist.

A new online Chinese Virtual Community Centre will also be launched, giving users the ability to upload user-generated content including videos, photos and blogs.

The above follows recent criticism of diminishing foreign language content shown on SBS. For more information:

NEWS FROM MAWSON PRIMARY SCHOOL

Thirty-six students from the school performed two songs at the beginning of the Mandarin Speaking Competition ceremony coordinated by the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office at the Centre for Teaching and Learning in Stirling on Friday 5 November. Four students from Mawson Primary were prize-winners in the competition.

The Principal of Mawson Primary School, Amanda Andrews, travelled to China recently. While there, she visited the school's sister school, Hangzhou Xuejun Primary School, and had discussions about the connections between the two schools. Staff at the Hangzhou school commented on the high quality of the written work done by Mawson students.

Mawson Primary is also holding a China Day celebration on Wednesday 24 November from 9.00am-1.00pm when all students and teachers will be engaged in activities based on Chinese language and culture.
